Dear Parents and Carers,

As yet, we still await information regarding what constitutes a key worker.

Once we have clarity, we can communicate with you to establish how this will work in our school. Rest assured, we will do everything we can to support our families.

Our plans for home learning are developing and will be shared with you as soon as we are able next week.

The link on the school website for home learning has been updated again tonight. This now has a time and date stamp on it so you can see if it has had further updates.

Today, I held a brief assembly for children in school explaining what we knew of the plans so far and explained that some of them would continue to be in school. They asked searching questions, all of which were answered honestly and some of which I simply didn't have the answers for.

Please don't forget that tomorrow children (and you) can wear odd socks for Down's Syndrome Awareness day! Let's make the playground an array of odd sock colour!

With thanks for your continued support
